It is known for its stunning beaches, clear blue waters, and diverse ecosystems. The two main islands are Viti Levu and Vanua Levu. Fiji has a population of around 900,000 and its capital is Suva. The country has a rich cultural heritage, blending Indigenous Fijian traditions with influences from Indian, European, and other Pacific cultures. Fiji is a popular tourist destination and has a mixed economy, with key industries including tourism, sugar, and mineral extraction. It gained independence from the United Kingdom in 1970.

Beqa Lagoon in Fiji is a renowned scuba diving destination, famous for its vibrant coral reefs, diverse marine life, and crystal-clear waters. Located off the southern coast of Viti Levu, the lagoon is home to over 200 species of coral and an abundance of fish, including sharks, rays, and numerous tropical species. It is particularly well-known for shark diving experiences, where divers can safely encounter several shark species, including the rare bull shark. The calm and warm waters, combined with impressive visibility, make Beqa Lagoon a popular choice for both beginners and experienced divers. The area also offers various dive sites, from shallow reefs to deep walls, making it a versatile diving destination.
